THE WHOLE IDEA

Open on a pile of your own dead, blackened jewellery — the exact thing every woman buying a ₹2,000 chain is afraid of. Then answer the question nobody in this category answers: it was never the gold. It is what the chain is built out of. Then prove it twice, on camera, in one take each.

READ THIS BEFORE ANYTHING ELSE

Both lines above are Naira's own product copy, not marketing invention. "Surgical stainless steel" and "square links that hold their shape and resist twisting" are the two most useful sentences in the whole catalogue, and nobody in Indian demi-fine is saying either of them out loud.

That is what this script is built on. The base metal is the reason jewellery goes green — and these are steel, not brass. The link shape is the reason chains kink — and these hold. Both facts can be shown on camera today. You do not need to have worn them for months. That is why there is no "I've had this for sixty days" anywhere in this script.

"GREEN." • 28 SECONDS

Read at a normal pace — about two and a half words a second. Do not rush and do not perform. Flat and slightly annoyed is right. The pictures are doing the selling; you are just telling someone what they are looking at.

0.0-0.5 [no voice — let the sound do it]

SHOW Hand tips the dish, dead jewellery clatters onto a hard table. Shot from above, close. Wear the Nocturne on the hand that tips it — good piece and dead ones in the same first frame.

ON SCREEN

#Ad

0.5-2.6 "Green. Every single one of these."

SHOW Stay on the pile. Push in slightly. Flat delivery — annoyed, not dramatic.

ON SCREEN

GREEN. EVERY ONE.

2.6-4.6 "And it was never the gold."

SHOW Hard cut to you, both pieces on, neutral. The prices land here — so anyone who scrolls at ten seconds already knows what this costs.

4.6-7.0 "It's what's underneath the gold."

SHOW Macro on a dead chain from your own pile — the link that has gapped open or kinked. Hold it. Evidence, not decoration.

ON SCREEN

LOOK AT THE LINK

7.0-10.2 "These two are surgical steel underneath the gold."

SHOW Macro of the box chain's square links, rotating. Match the framing of the dead link exactly so the eye compares them. Say this line slowly — it is the answer the ad exists to give.

ON SCREEN

SURGICAL STEEL BASE

10.2-13.4 [no voice — music drops away]

SHOW PROOF ONE — THE TWIST. One unbroken take. Twist a dead chain: it kinks and stays kinked. Twist the box chain the same way and let go: it comes back straight. Same hands, same frame, no cut. If it does not actually come back, do not shoot it — tell us and we change the script.

ON SCREEN

NO CUTS. ONE TAKE.

13.4-15.6 “Square links. They hold their shape.”

SHOW Chain drapes over the fingers and settles. Let it move.

ON SCREEN

SQUARE LINKS

15.6-18.0 [no voice — only water]

SHOW PROOF TWO — THE TAP. One unbroken take. Wrist under the running tap, hold three seconds, out, one shake, to camera still wet. No cut, no speed-up, no music over it. A tap — never a pool, a bath or the sea.

18.0-20.4 “Anti-tarnish sealed. Two years on the plating.”

SHOW Lobster clasp closing, macro, with the click. Then light travelling across the flat faces as the wrist turns.

ON SCREEN

ANTI-TARNISH SEALED

2-YEAR PLATING ASSURANCE

20.4-23.2 “Bracelet nineteen ninety-nine. Chain twenty-one forty-nine.”

SHOW Both pieces worn, wrist and neck in one frame. The chip carries delivery too — never quote a price the checkout beats.

+ ₹150 INSURED DELIVERY

23.2-25.4 “Seven-day returns. COD if you want it.”

SHOW Natural light, small smile. You are removing the last reason not to tap.

7-DAY RETURNS

25.4-27.8 “Tap Shop Now.”

SHOW Point down at the button. Never say “link in bio” — this is a paid ad with a real button; “link in bio” teaches people to leave. Then 1.3s of end card over live footage of the chain, not a flat colour — music resolves, never cuts to silence, and it loops.

WHAT TO BRING. WHAT TO SHOOT.

Shoot in this order — dry setups first, wet last, so nothing has to be dried twice. Three takes of everything, five of each unbroken proof.

What to have ready

The dead pile

Your own old jewellery — blackened chains, green rings, anything discoloured. In a small dish you can tip out. This is frame one of the ad, and one of the chains needs a visibly kinked or gapped link for the close-up.

A running tap

Kitchen or bathroom, with good light on it. Record the water sound live — it is the best audio in the reel.

A white card

Held opposite the window to bounce light back into the shadows. A sheet of A4 works.

Both Naira pieces, clean

Wipe with a microfibre cloth before every setup. At macro distance, one fingerprint is the whole shot.

Tripod or phone stand

Non-negotiable for the macros. At that distance the depth of field is a few millimetres and breathing moves the focus.

A quiet room, 10 minutes

Sound only: the pile clattering, the lobster clasp clicking, the chain poured onto a hard surface. Phone 10cm away, nothing else playing.

PHONE SETTINGS — ONCE, BEFORE ANYTHING

60fps so slow motion stays an option · tap to focus, then press and hold to lock AE/AF — focus hunting mid-take ruins most jewellery footage · no flash, ever · macros handheld with a slight drift, anything with your face on a tripod. Movement makes metal look alive; stillness makes a face look honest.

Ten setups

01

The dead pile

Top-down, close. Tip the dish, let it clatter, Nocturne on the wrist that tips it. Record the sound live. The first take always looks staged — shoot three.

02

You, both pieces on

Tripod, plain wall, eye level, window light behind the phone. Neutral face. No ceiling fan in frame.

03 • EVIDENCE

The dead link

Macro on a gapped or kinked link from your own pile. Tripod, focus locked. This is the shot that makes the argument true.

04 • EVIDENCE

The box link

Macro of the square links, rotating. Match the framing of shot 03 exactly so the eye compares them without being told to.

05 • PROOF

The twist — one take, 4–6s

Dead chain twisted, stays kinked → box chain twisted, springs back. Same hands, same frame, never cut between them. Five takes.

06

Chain draping

Poured over the fingers, allowed to settle. Handheld, slight drift. Record the sound.

07 • PROOF

The tap — one take, 5–7s

Wrist under running water → three seconds → out → one shake → to camera, still wet. Never cut inside it. Five takes.

08

The lobster clasp

Macro, closing, with the click. Nameable hardware nobody in this category advertises.

09

Both worn together

Wrist and neck in one frame, natural light. The flat faces of the curb link catching light as the wrist turns.

10

Sound only, 10 minutes

Pile clattering. Clasp clicking. Chain poured onto a hard surface. Box lid opening. Silent room, phone 10cm away.

Say this, not that

NEVER SAY

× “Waterproof”

× “18K gold”

× “It never tarnishes”

× “I’ve worn it for months”

× “₹1,999” on its own

SAY INSTEAD

✓ “Rain, washing up, hands — it stays on”

✓ “18K gold-plated” — these are plated over steel, not solid gold

✓ “Anti-tarnish sealed, two years on the plating”

✓ Nothing — you haven’t. The construction is the proof, not the time.

✓ The chip carries + ₹150 insured delivery alongside it

× “Only a few left”	✓ Nothing — unless it is genuinely true that day
× “Link in bio”	✓ “Tap Shop Now”
× “If you have sensitive skin...”	✓ “If your skin turns green...”
× Any other brand’s name	✓ “the eight-thousand-rupee one”

THE TWO THINGS THAT ARE NOT NEGOTIABLE

1 · #Ad goes in the top third of the frame, from the first second, and holds for nine seconds. Top third, not bottom — Instagram covers the bottom with its own buttons. Required for gifted collaborations, not just paid ones, and the brand carries the liability.

2 · Neither proof shot may be cut. If there is an edit between the twist and the release, or between the water and the reveal, the proof is worth nothing and the ad is worse than having no proof at all.

EVERYTHING SAID OUT LOUD.

The whole voiceover as one continuous read, with nothing but the words. This is the version to send Sejal for a trial recording — if she can read this straight through in about twenty seconds, the script is right.

“Green. Every single one of these. And it was never the gold. It’s what’s underneath the gold. These two are surgical steel underneath the gold. [twist — no voice] Square links. They hold their shape. [tap — no voice] Anti-tarnish sealed. Two years on the plating. Bracelet nineteen ninety-nine. Chain twenty-one forty-nine. Seven-day returns. COD if you want it. Tap Shop Now.”

52 words · about 20 seconds of speech · two silent gaps of roughly 3 seconds each where the proof shots go · 28 seconds total.

What to send her for the trial

Hi Sejal — before we shoot, could you send a quick voice note reading this straight through? Phone voice memo is fine, no need for anything fancy.

“Green. Every single one of these. And it was never the gold. It’s what’s underneath the gold. These two are surgical steel underneath the gold. Square links. They hold their shape. Anti-tarnish sealed. Two years on the plating. Bracelet nineteen ninety-nine. Chain twenty-one forty-nine. Seven-day returns. COD if you want it. Tap Shop Now.”

Flat and a bit annoyed for the first two lines, then normal. Don’t perform it — you’re just telling a friend what she’s looking at. Should come out around twenty seconds.

One thing to check for us: twist the Charm Box Chain gently and let go — does it come back straight? Ours should. If it kinks, tell us and we’ll change the script before you shoot anything.

WHY THIS ONE SHOULD BEAT THE LAST REEL

Objection-first, not discovery. Across 52 DTC accounts, objection-led hooks ran 15–25% lower CAC on cold traffic than benefit-led ones. The last reel opened on the benefit-led baseline.

The price is on screen at 2.6 seconds, not absent for thirty-three.

There are two physical proofs, where the last reel had none — and of roughly 1,500 active Indian jewellery ads on Meta this month, one ran a durability mechanism. One.

It argues construction. Your own audit of 498 competitor creatives found nobody in this category argues craft. Square links. Surgical steel. Lobster clasp. Nobody else is saying any of it.

And nothing in it is invented. Every claim is either Naira's own product copy or something the camera proves in a single unbroken take.
